When little Laura can't sleep, she often gazes up at the star-studded sky. One night, she sees a little star falling from the sky. It lands on the pavement right in front of her house. She helps him get back up into the night sky by attaching many balloons to him. It's the beginning of a very special, magical friendship.

It's a friendship truly made in heaven, since with her little star shining over her, Laura learns to see the most ordinary things in a new light. The inquisitive little girl suddenly finds unconventional solutions to problems and makes amazing journeys in her dreams.

Laura's little brother Tommy, who's still in nursery school, can still be easily frightened. This is why he often seeks the comfort of his big sister and her special friend. Laura and Tommy lead the lives of countless children and make many new experiences. And even if Laura feels lonely when her mother is away at a concert and her father busy with his work, Laura knows she's always got her star...
