ALASKA STATE TROOPERS

In Alaska, where lawlessness is practically a way of life and 90 percent of residents own a gun, keeping the peace is one of the toughest jobs in the state. And finding criminals in this vast wasteland is often like looking for a needle in a haystack. Yet this is the daily task of the Alaska State Troopers. It's adrenaline-pumping, unrelenting work – and it makes for thrilling viewing.

In Alaska, the weather is treacherous, everyone is armed, and the wild animals are sometimes less fearsome than some of the humans. One police officer puts it like this: "One thing that's different about our law enforcement is that we know people will have guns, they will have knives, and they'll know how to use them." Yet most of the men and women who make up the State Trooper police force wouldn't have it any other way.

The production team gained rare access to this elite law-enforcement agency for this documentary program. The series captures a mixture of raw nature and criminal activity throughout the Alaskan wilderness and its remote villages. The Troopers' mission is to fight crime, enforce fish and game regulations, and patrol the rugged terrain of America's largest state.

What's awaiting viewers in this one-of-a-kind action doc? The annual "Arctic Man Ski" event, when 10,000 people boisterously celebrate daredevil snow machine feats... A drug unit gone undercover to nab a narcotics dealer in the western outpost of Bethel... A nail-biting search in a pitch-black forest for a suspect who previously assaulted an officer... A flight to find two hunters stranded in an area with one of the highest concentrations of bear attacks in Alaska... From search-and-rescue missions atop massive mountains to street crime in the freezing Alaska night, there's nothing the Alaska State Troopers won't tackle!
